Kirkpatrick Fanfare (1999)
ANDREW BOYSEN, JR. (b. 1968)
Duration: 3:30 minutes
Commissioned by Central Missouri State University for the dedication of the James C. Kirkpatrick Library in March, 1999, this work has a definite Irish flavor, including a strain of Danny Boy. The “fanfare” features driving rhythms and exciting brass figures, making this dramatic work sure to please both performers and audiences alike.

An American Elegy (1999)
FRANK TICHELI (b. 1958)
Duration: 11 minutes
An American Elegy is, above all, an expression of hope. It was composed in memory of those who lost their lives at Columbine High School on April 20, 1999, and to honor the survivors. It is offered as a tribute to their great strength and courage in the face of a terrible tragedy and I hope the work can also serve as one reminder of how fragile and precious life is and how intimately connected we all are as human beings. The work begins at the bottom of the ensemble's register, and ascends gradually to a heartfelt cry of hope. The main theme that follows, stated by the horns, reveals a more lyrical, serene side of the piece. A second theme, based on a simple repeated harmonic pattern, suggests yet another, more poignant mood. These three moods: hope, serenity, and sadness, become intertwined throughout the work, defining its complex expressive character. A four-part canon builds to a climactic quotation of the Columbine Alma Mater. The music recedes, and an offstage trumpeter is heard, suggesting a celestial voice, a heavenly message. The full ensemble returns with a final, exalted statement of the main theme.

Elements (Petite Symphony) (2010)
BRIAN BALMAGES (b. 1975)
Duration: 9 minutes
Elements is a short 4-movement work (thus it's subtitle) constructed in the same form as a traditional symphony: Allegro non troppo, Largo, Scherzo, and Allegro vivace. Each movement corresponds with and musically depicts a specific element: air, water, earth, and fire. Air has a minimalistic quality, opening with a 4-note motif that continues uninterruptedly through the entire movement. According to Greek philosopher Empedocles, air is an outwardly reaching element, reaching up and out. This explains the structure of the movement, beginning very sparsely, building, and then developing. The second movement, Water, is impressionistic in nature. The movement represents Empedocles’s belief that water is an inwardly reaching element. Momentary crests and dips in the music represent droplets of water interrupting the smooth appearance of the surface and creating small ripples that extend from the point of impact. The third movement, Earth, describes the rapid spinning of the earth itself. It draws its musical inspiration from Mercury, the winged messenger from Holst’s The Planets. Except for a few brief moments, the entire movement is light with a great deal of forward momentum. The final movement, Fire, is the most aggressive and harmonically complex, and as a result, is the most challenging. It depicts the intensity of fire and is relentless in its approach. Even when the music appears to have reached a climax, dissonance takes over to create an element of uncertainty. Finally, the familiar e-note motif of the first movement blazes through the rhythmic and harmonic complexity.

Circus Days (1944)
KARL KING (1891-1971)
Duration: 2 minutes

Born in February, 1891, in Paintersville, Ohio, Karl L. King became one of the legendary bandmasters and composers of marches alongside John Philip Sousa and Henry Fillmore. King began playing in many touring circus bands at the age of 19 as a baritone player. While performing with the Barnum and Bailey Circus, he composed one of his most popular marches, Barnum and Bailey’s Favorite (1913). Circus Days (1944) was composed to reminisce the days when King performed in circus bands, and was arranged by the avid Sousa scholar, Loras Schissel. In his conductor notes, Schissel writes, “each conductor will find his or her ‘correct’ tempo for this work.” The piece can be performed at a bright march tempo or a very fast galop with sharp contrasts in dynamics.
